

The Industry Conference Resource

January 2021

It is said that 2020 vision is considered perfect. However, most would say we were blindsided by what 2020 had in store for us when it started. Uncertainty, isolation, and loss have all become descriptions in far too many aspects of our lives. As a partner in the transportation industry who has seen a significant interruption to the way we provide you service, it would be easy for us to focus on the negative aspects of the year and make excuses for the year ahead. At Housman and Associates, LLC that is just not our style.

In fact, we can point to countless examples of support, friendship, and enduring spirit from our transportation family. The fraternal air within our industry stimulates our hope for 2021 and encourages us to keep looking ahead. While we have no way of forecasting the future, we know without a doubt that our industry remains a critical piece of our society and together we can continue to extend excellent engineering solutions and transportation alternatives for those who rely on us to provide them.

So, let's proceed on our journey, shall we? We will continue to give you access to the information-sharing opportunities where available. We are also committed to doing our part toward recovery. Conferences will come back and economic opportunity will be restored. In the meantime, please know that our 'doors' are always open to discuss ideas on how to get us there. After all, we are all part of the transportation family and family should always stick together.
